

THE SOLO FOUNDER SERIES

Run a Portfolio Like a Company

The org chart, cost map, and delegation cadence that let one person operate like a team. With prompts to run it.

Turn scattered projects into a company you run like a CEO.

- 1 List every venture + a one-line 'goal right now' for each.
- 2 Give each venture a CEO role and sub-roles (marketing, research, product).
- 3 Build a cost map: who/what runs each workstream and what it costs.
- 4 Set priority order - where focus goes first.
- 5 Run a weekly review across all ventures: numbers, spend, next moves.

That's the whole system. The rest of this guide walks each step, with copy-paste prompts you can run in one tap.

The deep walkthrough

1

Map the portfolio

Get every venture out of your head and onto one page.

PROMPT · MAP MY PORTFOLIO

Help me map my venture portfolio. For each venture I name, capture: status, the ONE goal right now, and who/what runs it. Then propose a priority order (where my focus should go first) and tell me which venture is most neglected relative to its potential.

2

Assign the org chart

Each venture gets a CEO and sub-roles so work is organized by area.

PROMPT · BUILD THE ORG CHART

For my venture [NAME], design a simple AI-run org chart: a CEO role (sets weekly priorities) and sub-roles for marketing, research, and product. Write a one-sentence remit for each role and the first task each should own.

3

Build the cost map

You can't optimize what you can't see.

PROMPT · COST MAP + AUDIT

Here are my tools and rough monthly costs: [LIST]. For each, tell me which active workstream it serves, then label it KEEP, CUT, RIGHT-SIZE, or DON'T-START with a one-line reason. End with my total recoverable spend.

4

Run the weekly review

The cadence is what makes it a company, not a pile.

PROMPT · PORTFOLIO WEEKLY REVIEW

Run my portfolio weekly review. For each venture: what moved, what stalled, and the top 1-3 tasks for next week. Flag the single most important thing across the whole portfolio, and one thing I should stop doing.

REMEMBER

Structure is leverage. The org chart is what lets one person hold five ventures without dropping any.
